NASP Advocacy Roadmap: The NASP Practice Model

Model for Comprehensive and Integrated School Psychological Services

Exhibit K

Advocating for School Psychology: Lessons Learned

NASP is interested in hearing your stories detailing your advocacy efforts on behalf of school psychologists and the promotion of the NASP Practice Model. Please complete the form below and email it to Kelly Vaillancourt, NASP Director of Government Relations, at kvaillancourt@naspweb.org Please also send any related materials, handouts, or PowerPoint presentations that were developed to support your advocacy efforts. As appropriate, this information will be reviewed and posted on the NASP website for all to learn from your experiences.

Your name:

Professional title:

State:

School District:

Who developed and promoted this advocacy activity?

_____ You

_____ Other independent individual(s)--(please list all):

_____ A professional organization (please name)

_____ A school or university (please name)

_____ Other (please name)

What were the general goals for this advocacy activity?
Who was your target audience?

Please describe your advocacy activity (who, what, when, where, and why).

What were the outcomes of your advocacy activity?

What is the most important thing that you learned from engaging in this activity?

Additional Comments:

Thank you for taking the time to share your story so that others can learn from your example.