

NASP membership helps you meet your professional challenges with essential resources and member-only discounts.

About NASP

The National Association of School Psychologists (NASP) is the largest, most influential organization of school psychologists in the world, with over 24,000 members. For over 40 years, NASP has been setting standards for training and practice, advocating on behalf of children and families, and providing quality professional resources to its members. NASP programs and services are guided by an elected leadership body of school psychologists. They dedicate their time and expertise to ensure that NASP continues to be the leading edge in quality services for children, families, and schools.

Join Today

Join or renew today at www.nasponline.org and take advantage of all of the benefits.

NASP MEMBERSHIP

Meeting Your Day-to-Day Professional Challenges

Access Resources Vital to Your Work

Communiqué Newspaper—Increase your knowledge and awareness of school psychology issues with the latest news and highlights on practice, trends, and innovations in the field.

School Psychology Review Journal—Stay up to date on the latest research and cutting-edge expertise shaping the field with school psychology's most prestigious peer-reviewed journal.

School Psychology Forum Electronic Journal—Gain insight into effective approaches to translating research into practice on key issues in the field with NASP's refereed, online only, and interactive journal.

Publications—Take advantage of the 20% member discount on the latest high quality books and multimedia in the field.

The National Association of School Psychologists represents school psychology and supports school psychologists to enhance the learning and mental health of all children and youth.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF SCHOOL
PSYCHOLOGISTS

4340 East West Highway, Suite 402
Bethesda, MD 20814
(301) 657-0270
(866) 331-NASP, toll free
(301) 657-0275, fax
(301) 657-4155, TTY
www.nasponline.org

"Communiqué and School Psychology Review are great resources that make it easy to keep up with current research and legal updates at the national level."

— Kayla Lockie, LSSP, Dallas Independent School District

Renew or Join Today

(301) 657-0270 or toll free (866) 331-NASP
www.nasponline.org

“It is important to support our profession and stand up for the importance of school psychology to children and their families.”

— Jennifer Loiseau, NCSP, Charlotte-Mecklenburg Schools

“NASP has supported me at every step of my career.”

— Paula Freer, MSW, PhD, School Psychologist, Snellville, GA

Stay Informed and Enhance Your Skills

Online Professional Development—Enhance your professional success with NASP’s Online Learning Center, which offers on-demand content and live webinars for low-cost professional development.

Online Resource Library—Save time with easily accessible articles, podcasts, and much more, organized by topic for your convenience.

Handouts for Parents and Teachers—Enhance your effectiveness with parents, teachers, and other professionals with downloadable resource materials.

“Through the NASP Communities, I was able to link up with another school psychologist who works in a nearby district and share information about a social skills curriculum.”

— Julie Staresnick, NCSP, Indianapolis, IN

Exchange Information and Support With Your Colleagues

Annual Convention and Summer Conferences—Learn from respected experts and come together with your peers at the annual convention, or gain knowledge and training to be more effective in your practice with advanced sessions at one of the summer conferences, with substantial member discounts.

Online Communities—See what your colleagues are discussing and post your own questions. You can get experience-tested advice to help you deal with the challenges you face at work.

Interest Groups—Come together with your colleagues around specialized areas of interest and practice.

Career Center—Find new job opportunities close to home and across the country.

Gain Strength in Numbers

Promote the Value of the Profession—Advocate for the school psychology field and your role as a school psychologist with adaptable presentations, handouts, and related materials, and support efforts to address national and local threats to title, practice, and employment.

Advocacy and Legislative Support—Influence national and state legislative policies and practices affecting children’s learning and development with easy-to-use tools.

Nationally Certified School Psychologist (NCSP)—Gain recognition and qualify for additional salary benefits, in some states and districts, by maintaining the NCSP credential at discounted member rates.

Professional Liability Insurance—Protect yourself by applying for professional liability insurance from top providers, for both school-based and private practitioners, with member-only rates that offer significant savings.

To learn about all of NASP’s membership benefits, visit www.nasponline.org.