Meaghan Guiney Named New Editor of Communiqué

Bethesda, MD—The National Association of School Psychologists (NASP) is pleased to announce that Meaghan Curran Guiney, PhD, NCSP, has been selected as the editor-elect of Communiqué, NASP’s flagship member publication. Dr. Guiney has begun her term as editor-elect and will assume full editorship July 1, 2023, for a 5-year term. She will succeed John Desrochers, PhD, NCSP, who has served as Communiqué editor since 2007.

Dr. Guiney comes to this position with a wealth of relevant experience in writing, editing, publishing, and mentoring authors. She has been a school-based practitioner and just recently stepped down after 10 years as a faculty member at Fairleigh Dickinson University (Teaneck, NJ). She also has served in NASP leadership since 2009, including serving as a member of the Board of Directors since 2018.

Dr. Guiney noted, “My vision for Communiqué is, first and foremost, to keep the newspaper a relevant, accessible, practical, and authoritative professional resource for school psychologists. It is one of our most valuable member benefits, and I am grateful to John and his editorial team for consistently making it such a high-quality publication for so many years. I hope to build on their excellent work by highlighting creative ways that practitioners can put research findings into practice in their school districts, while at the same time elevating a wide range of voices and perspectives within our profession.”

“We are delighted to have Meaghan join the leadership of Communiqué,” said NASP Executive Director Kathleen Minke. “In addition to her writing, editing, and leadership skills, Meaghan brings to the editor position an exceptional understanding of both the issues facing individual school psychologists and the overarching strategic priorities of the profession. We are confident she will bring these two perspectives together in a way that supports school psychologists’ work today and helps equip them for their roles in the future.”

The official newspaper of NASP, Communiqué is the premier source of news and information relevant to daily practice, trends, and innovations in the field of school psychology. Communiqué is published eight times per year and is a NASP member benefit.

NASP is the largest organization of school psychologists in the world and works to empower school psychologists to promote the learning, behavior, and mental health of all children and youth.
