The NASP Community [has] been the highlight of my membership because it allows me to receive AND disseminate information, resources, and general tips and tricks with professionals and graduate students from across the country."

– CATALINA, FLORIDA

1 CONNECTIONS
Turn to seasoned practitioners and faculty in the NASP Member Exchange to help you prepare for your future career or to work through challenges following COVID-19. Learn from practitioners and faculty sharing their experiences in the COVID-19 Ask the Experts webinar series. Speak with students from other programs at the convention and in the Graduate Students online community.

2 SAVINGS
Receive deep discounts on convention registration, publications (including the Best Practices set and School Psychology in a Global Society), NCSP applications, liability insurance for your internship, live webinars and on-demand sessions in the Online Learning Center, and more.

“Being a member of NASP as a student was, for me, an excellent way to reflect and chart my professional development.”

—ANDREW, MINNESOTA

RESOURCES
Always find current, evidence-based research and practices to enhance your coursework, internship, or practicum in Communiqué, School Psychology Review, the Journal of Applied School Psychology, and the Journal of Educational and Psychological Consultation. Download fact sheets on overcoming impostor syndrome, preparing for and navigating internships, and more. Listen to our new podcast series on equity, diversity, and inclusion.

PROFESSIONAL GROWTH
View and apply to jobs and internships in the NASP Career Center for 7 days before nonmembers. Participate in the Student Leader Program for valuable leadership and advocacy experience. Access leadership resources or participate in the Leadership Institute to help you step into your new role with confidence.

ADVOCACY
Your membership dues support advocacy at the federal and state levels to promote equitable education for all students and to address important professional issues, including workforce shortages.
